

The introduction of cell phone use in the cabin would not only introduce a new security risk and increase tension among passengers, it would also compromise Flight Attendants' ability to maintain order in an emergency. Imagine trying to prepare passengers for an evacuation and you're getting the "wait a minute" finger wag while the people in that area miss out on crucial information the flight attendants are trying to communicate.